I believe in the air section you are trying to fess up to something unnecessarily. The guidelines do not ask for data from an air station and there is no reference to us requiring one at all. The guidelines simply suggest that we should have 12 months met data to use in a TAPM model. There is also no requirement to validate TAPM data with actual station data. this is a nice to have view of [REDACTED] Pls. confer with [REDACTED] about what we need to put in this section if anything as I believe we meet the emission and scoping guidelines in all that we have done. I will be in Singapore for the next few days so cannot do much more other than to ask that you ring me if you are at variance with my view.
